CALIFORNIA COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION KICKS OFF ITS 61ST YEAR

READY, SET, GO . . . The California Collegiate Athletic Association commences its 61st academic year as a member conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The CCAA has claimed more NCAA titles (132) than any other Division II conference.

The fall sports seasons officially begin today with three non-league men's soccer matchups and a women's volleyball encounter. The women's soccer season begins Thursday and the cross country season starts Saturday, September 4.

CCAA SUMMER RECAP . . .

The UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SAN DIEGO was officially accepted as a full-time member of the CCAA and will begin competing in all 13 league sports in the 2000-01 academic year. The Tritons currently compete the CCAA in cross country and track & field.

SONOMA STATE soccer player Christopher Ziemer and UC RIVERSIDE basketball and track & field athlete Suzy Babko were named 1998-99 CCAA Male and Female Scholar Athletes of the Year by the league Faculty Athletics Representatives.

Longtime men's basketball coach Stan Morrison was named the Director of Athletics at UC RIVERSIDE. Morrison has been the Athletic Director at UC Santa Barbara and most recently served as a personal coach and consultant to Shaquille O'Neal.

UC DAVIS, which tied for second in the final Division II Sears Directors' Cup standings, was named as the best NCAA Division II institution in the nation for women athletes by Sports Illustrated for Women.

The CCAA renewed its agreement with Rawlings sports equipment. Rawlings will continue to be designated as the official baseball and basketball of the CCAA for the next three years and will again sponsor the CCAA Baseball and Basketball Player of the Week awards.
